

BUNDORAN

The Gaelic name for Bundoran is Bun Dobhráin which means the place where the river Dobhrán runs into the sea. It is County Donegal's most southerly town and is often referred to as the "Gateway to Donegal". It is situated just over 30 minutes drive from Sligo town.

There is a long tradition of welcome and hospitality associated with Bundoran and the town is now recognised as one of Ireland's premier seaside resorts offering a perfect base from which to sample the hugely diverse range of activities and attractions that the North West of Ireland has to offer.
